

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The information entry device of the present invention groups a plurality of information such as character information, displays each group so that each information
5 contained therein is recognizable; displays a group selected in the group selection mode so as to be distinguishable from other groups; allows transition of such group selected in the group selection mode into the information selection mode; displays an information selected from such group in the 10 information selection mode so as to be distinguishable from other information, and sets such information selected in the information selection mode as a definable information; and defines an entry of such information when a predetermined definitive instruction is issued in respect of such definable
15 information. This successfully improves time efficiency and operational efficiency in information entry, and allows facile and rapid information entry.